

Read for the Fun of It! Teen Read Week Is October 9th–15th

Teen Read Week is a national literacy initiative to encourage teens to read for the fun of it. But no matter your age, you can participate by simply reading, exploring new titles and genres, or discussing what you have read with others—especially with teens.

Bullitt County Public Library offers a little something for everyone’s reading pleasure, whether they prefer traditional books, e-books, audiobooks, or a combination. We are also working hard to make it easier than ever for you to find the materials you want, as demonstrated by the recent reorganization of our Junior Fiction (middle-grade books for ages 8–12, plus many “tween” titles targeted to ages 10–14) and Young Adult Fiction (teen fiction, generally for ages 12–18) sections. We are now working on doing the same thing for our Graphic Novels collection; soon, these titles will be separated at all locations into three categories: Junior Graphic Novels, Young Adult Graphic Novels, and Graphic Novels (those written primarily for an adult audience).

For teen book suggestions, be sure to check our book displays and the resources on the Books, Movies & More pages of the BCPL website. Key resources for YA readers include the Ultimate Teen Booklist, Book Picks, and Quick Picks. You can also check out our Teen Reads board on Pinterest! Plus:

- Tweens and teens are encouraged to join our monthly teen book club. The Literary Society is currently reading (and in some cases re-reading) the Percy Jackson series by Rick Riordan.

- Our newly updated Ultimate Teen Booklist releases on Wednesday, October 12th!
- We will be featuring special guest reviews from area teens on our Book News & Reviews blog during Teen Read Week.
- And don’t forget that you can always request a Personalized Reading List! Simply fill out the request form on our website, and reader advisory specialists will create a list of reading suggestions based on your personal preferences.

Don't Miss Our 5th Annual Author Faire!

Join us on the first day of October to connect with local authors and readers. This is an excellent opportunity to ask established authors about their work, their process, and their advice for getting published. Light refreshments will be provided throughout the day.

This year’s spotlight event will be a special workshop, “Mapping Your Memory House,” with Kentucky Poet Laureate George Ella Lyon. Beginning at 10:00 AM, the author and poet will lead the audience in a writing exercise and read from Many-Storied House, the poetry collection that grew out of that exercise. Registration is required for guaranteed workshop admission.

Author Faire will also feature public readings from several other published authors. Authors writing in a number of categories—including memoir, history, self-help, cookbooks, mystery, romance, science fiction, fantasy, Christian fiction, young adult fiction, middle-grade fiction, and children’s picture books—will be present.

More details about the event and participating authors are available on the library website.

The Nice Guys

More of what you want and less of what you don't.

If you have taken a close look at the library's shelves lately, you probably noticed a little bit more room in some areas and even a few new categories. We are doing a lot of work to make sure that the titles we have available to check out are both easier to find and, more important, things that our patrons want to take home and enjoy (but of course you could always find a cozy chair here if you prefer!). This really comes down to a few processes that will work together to form a better library for the people of Bullitt County.

First, we are working to make items easier to find. One part of this process is working on improving our catalog's accuracy. We are doing a sort of inventory to make sure we have the items that the catalog says that we do. If we no longer have an item, the catalog should and will reflect that. We are also working on adding new sections for children and teens that will make it easier to find books and graphic novels that are right for their age and reading level. You can find out more about that on the article on the front page.

Second, we are clearing out titles that are no longer getting checked out. Some of our books, such as those found in our Reference and Genealogy sections, will be kept forever. Others, like outdated books on electrical code or no-longer-in-style home decorating books, are better off being removed. It is inevitable that certain titles or topics fall out of favor with the population at large (look up some of the gelatin-obsessed cookbooks from the 1950s for a perfect example of a trend that has come and gone) and we as a library need to keep up with your interests, so we carefully review items that are flagged for removal and keep those items that are still relevant. The rest will be discarded. Many of the discarded titles will be put up for sale, either in our donation areas or online, and the rest will be recycled or donated to other community organizations.

Finally, we are refining our methods for selecting which items should be purchased for our collection. This improved approach considers recent checkout histories for similar titles and authors, popularity of titles at similar public libraries, and buying enough copies of titles to meet the growing demands from our growing population. We are also taking advantage of this refinement to take a look at new and recent authors that should be a larger part of what we offer.

With all these process changes, there might be a few hiccups along the way. Just let us know if you are having trouble finding an item and we will do what we can to get it in your hands. Your feedback is essential in the process of helping the Bullitt County Public Library be a better system!

Can't Find What You're Looking for?

1. Ask a library staff member for help.
2. Try a different format (for example, a large-type copy or an e-book).
3. If an item isn't in our system, consider Interlibrary Loan for older items or submit a Patron Purchase Request for newer ones.

Mt. Washington Construction Update

Our new Mt. Washington Branch Library is still on track for completion in March 2017. In fact, metal sheeting for the roof is going up ahead of schedule!

Currently, construction is focused on the roof and finishing up the exterior framing. Inside, plumbing, HVAC, and other systems are being put in place. When the roof is completed, workers will move on to do closer interior work, such as framing, drywalling, and roughing-in the electrical work. We also expect exterior masonry work to begin shortly.

DID YOU KNOW...?

We have updated our Overdue Materials Policy! The new policy sets maximum overdue charges on any library account at $20. Anyone whose overdue fines were over $20 before the new policy was put in place now has a charge of $20 until payment is made.

The intention of overdue fines is to encourage prompt return of library materials so that items remain available to other patrons. However, we never want overdue fines to become so high that you are unable to use your library card. The new $20 overdue fine cap is our way of balancing these two considerations.

The change in our overdue policy will not affect charges for lost items. Charges for each unreturned, lost, or destroyed item will remain the cost of the item with no maximum amount for the account.

We Have a Library Board Opening

Apply to join the
BCPL Board of Trustees

Want to help our public library system grow? We are seeking a dedicated, community-minded individual to fill an upcoming vacancy on our Library Board of Trustees.

Bullitt County Public Library strives to address community information and entertainment needs through the library's collections, through programs and services, and through constant adaptation in response to community needs. Our county has seen exponential growth over the past decade, and this change has been reflected in the rapid growth of the library system itself.

We anticipate that changes in the community and its needs will continue, and BCPL needs energetic, passionate, and capable Board members to provide strategic direction and to build awareness of library initiatives within the community.

To ensure equitable representation for each of our individual communities, a resident of the Hillview/Northern Bullitt County area is strongly preferred for the opening. This is a volunteer position.

Applications are available on the library website and will be accepted through November 8th. You may submit applications in print at any BCPL location, fax them to 543-5487, or e-mail completed forms to joe@bcplib.org.

About the Veterans History Project

The Veterans History Project was created in 2000 by the U.S. Congress as part of the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress. The Project's mission is to collect, preserve, and make available personal accounts of American war veterans so that future generations can hear directly from veterans to better understand the realities of war.

Beginning in 2004, Bullitt County Public Library conducted and recorded video interviews with several area veterans about their service, including accounts of their experiences in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and the first Gulf War.

history could not be reliably passed down from generation to generation. Kentucky Oral History Day was created to promote awareness of the many oral history collections housed across the Commonwealth while improving access and preservation.

In recognition of the importance of preserving oral histories and making them available to the public, BCPL's reference department is busy converting our Veterans History Project recordings from VHS to DVD. We've also digitized many of the interviews from the Out of the Shadows women's history project. The interviews were originally recorded on microcassettes in the early 1990s, and sound quality has been deteriorating as the cassettes age. By copying these materials to new formats, we are ensuring they will last further into the future and that people will be able to listen to them as technology evolves. After all, few families still have cassette or VHS players anymore.

The conversion project is expected collections—the Veterans History Project and Out of the Shadows—will be made available for listening and viewing at listening posts in the Ridgway genealogy room. Copies of the Out of the Shadows book are currently available for checkout.

BCPL Reference and Genealogy clerk Marianne Reber said, "The Bullitt County Public Library's oral history collections help fill in or 'round out' the gaps in our area's written history. Most of the stories would have otherwise gone untold or been forgotten. Hopefully this event will inspire people to capture and preserve their own life stories, personal anecdotes, and family traditions."

For more oral history resources beyond Bullitt County, you can access Ancestry Library Edition at any of our BCPL locations. Select the Stories, Memories & Histories collection and find the Oral Histories & Interviews link to explore interviews with former slaves, first-hand immigrant stories, pioneer accounts, and more.

About the Out of the Shadows Project

The Out of the Shadows project was initiated in 1993 by the Bullitt County Public Library and Bullitt County Literacy Coordinator Marty Cox to record and publish oral histories of Bullitt County women with the goal of "improving the reading level and the self-esteem" of the females in the county. The intention was to document history from the female point of view to highlight women's contributions that are typically unnoted in the more male-centric versions of recorded history.

After obtaining a federal grant for the project, Betty Darnell and Carol French were hired to develop the project and conduct interviews. Interviews were recorded, and the recordings and notes were used to make up a published history of Bullitt County women.

A total of 119 women and 2 men ages 20 to 104 were interviewed and featured in the final result. Genealogy charts were also included in the book, Out of the Shadows: A History of Bullitt County Women, which was completed and published in 1994.

“...Oral history collections help fill in or 'round out' the gaps in our area's written history. Most of the stories would have otherwise gone untold or been forgotten.”
